IAQ Web-based Resources

The screenshot shows the homepage of the Institute for Tribal Environmental Professionals (ITEP) Indoor Air Quality in Tribal Communities (IAQTC). The header includes the Northern Arizona University logo and the text "Institute for Tribal Environmental Professionals". The main navigation menu lists: Air Quality, TAMS Center, Indoor Air Quality, Waste & Response, K-16 Education Outreach, TCERC, Resources, and Conferences. The page features a "Welcome to IAQ in Tribal Communities" banner with a landscape image. A sidebar on the left contains links for "ITEP Home", "IAQTC", "Radon", "Indoor asthma triggers", "Indoor air quality management programs in schools", "National Conferences and Outreach to Tribes", "Technical Assistance", "IAQTC Newsletters", "IAQTC Conferences", "US Environmental Protection Agency Indoor Environments Division", "Radiation and Indoor Environments National Laboratory (RIENL)", and "IAQTC Home". The main content area includes "Indoor Air Quality in Tribal Communities (IAQTC)", "IAQTC CONFERENCES:", "IAQTC WEBINARS:", and "Indoor air quality (IAQ) is a critical issue facing many tribes throughout the country. Improving indoor air quality can result in significant improvements in health thereby decreasing medical costs and improving quality of life." It also mentions EPA risks and provides a "Technical Assistance" section with a "Go to Webinars" link and an "Online Request Form" button.
